

I am writing in regards to the recent issues being raised with XM Radio and their right to broadcast weather and traffic. I travel frequently, and utilize this service often. To be without it, would be detrimental to my travel. I feel that I have to right to continue to receive this valuable service that I pay for monthly, just like cable TV or satellite TV subscribers have the right to receive the channels that they pay for through their service. It really makes no logical sense that XM Radio should not be allowed to broadcast these valuable tools to consumers, without also limiting cable and satellite television, which is essentially the same service, without pictures. I feel that my rights as a consumer would be violated by restricting these services, as I would no longer be getting what I have already paid for.

Sincerely

Mrs. Lisa K Bitler - Fox Lake, Illinois
